During the Annual General Meeting of the World Alliance of International Financial Centers (WAIFC), held in Casablanca, Morocco, Keiichi Aritomo emphasized the value of sharing best practices and knowledge at the WAIFC. In particular, the possibility to address internal social issues through an international financial alliance.

How would you define the WAIFC?

We can learn a great deal from the different international financial centers and the diversity that has been established.

In the past, there was a contrasting notion, that they should work independently and could not educate on financial matters, but that idea is gone. Rather, we should be able to share knowledge and learn from every part and learn about different kinds of social issues.

And, to address the social issues, we have to do it alongside the rest of the world.

How is the WAIFC contributing to a better world?

The World Alliance of International Financial Centers (WAIFC) concedes a mindset to establish mutual understanding and solutions to social issues, through Finance. That is why FinCity.Tokyo is committed and motivated to be part of this international Alliance.

As the new Chair of the WAIFC, I am committed to working with our WAIFC members to achieve our objectives.

Opinion of Thomas Krantz: Highlights of the APEC Business Advisory Council Report

Thomas Krantz, our Advisor to the Managing Director, examines the influence of The Asia-Pacific Economic Cooperation (APEC), including the proceedings of the APEC’s annual dialogue at the highest intergovernmental level.

"The Asia-Pacific Economic Cooperation is an inter-governmental forum for 21 member-state economies in the Pacific Rim that promotes free trade throughout the region, founded in 1989. As the region has grown substantially in terms of economic heft since its first conference, year by year its trade policies have taken on ever greater global importance."
